ABSTRACT

This report presents the results of the twelfth "Survey of Voluntary Support of Education" conducted by the Council for Financial Aid to Education. Highlights of the findings of the survey include: (1) The total voluntary support of colleges and universities in 1970-71 is estimated at a new record high of $1.860 billion. (2) All of the increase in total support was due to increased giving by alumni and nonalumni individuals, and much of this resulted from a sharp gain in bequests. (3) Business corporations reduced their support by 5.7% in 1970-71, primarily because of lower profits. (4) The public colleges and universities reported 12.2% more support in 1970-71 than in 1969-70. (5) Although the private, 4-year institutions continued to account for the lion's share of total support, they reported only 1.9% more in 1970-71 than in 1969-70. (6) The private junior colleges and public community colleges reported a large decline in support in 1970-71. (7) More than 55% of the 1970-71 total was earmarked for current operating expenses. PREFACE

This report presents the results of the twelfth Survey of Voluntary Support of Education conducted by the Council for Financial Aid to Education since 1954-55. In recent years, the American Alumni Council and the National Association of Independent Schools have joined the CFAE as co-sponsors of the Survey in an effort to produce a single survey of educational philanthropy with the broadest possible coverage.

The figures in this report are the result of countless hours of work by many individuals. To all those who filled out the questionnaires, to the institutions they represent, and to the co-operating associations in the educational community, the AAC, the CFAE, and the NAIS would like to express their deepest gratitude.

The following table summarizes the participation record for 1970-71:

The definitions used in the 1970-71 Survey are the same as those used in 1969-70. Voluntary support, as defined in Gift Reporting Standards, excludes income from endowment and other invested funds, as well as all support received from Federal, state and local governments and their agencies; in editing the questionnaires, the CFAE deleted all income from these sources when so identified by the reporting institution. Enrollment figures not supplied by the colleges and universities were taken from Opening Fall Enrollment in Higher Education, 1970, published by the U.S. Office of Education.

Since 1965-66, the Survey information has been processed by electronic computer, and most of the data supplied by the participating institutions have been stored on magnetic tape. The ready availability of this information makes it possible to undertake supplemental studies of educational philanthropy in accord with any expressed interest in the subject.

Highlights

HIGHER EDUCATION

Total Reaches New High. The total voluntary support of colleges and universities in 1970-71 is estimated at $1.860 billion. This is a new record high, 3.3% above the previous high of $1.800 billion set in 1968-69, and 4.5% above last year's estimated total of $1.780 billion.

Individual Support Up Sharply. All of the increase in total support was due to increased giving by alumni and non-alumni individuals, and much of this resulted from a sharp gain in bequests. Alumni gifts were up 19.2% and support from other individuals increased 9.5%.

Corporation and Foundation Support Down. Business corporations reduced their support 5.7% in 1970-71, primarily because of lower profits. Foundation support was off 0.7%, and it dropped from second to third in terms of relative importance.

Largest Gains Reported by Public Colleges and Universities. The public colleges and universities reported 12.2% more support in 1970-71 than in 1969-70. This was the third straight year in which they reported the largest increases, and their share of the total has now reached 22.0% as compared with 17.8% in 1967-68.

Private Colleges and Universities Up Slightly. Although the private, four-year institutions continued to account for the lion's share of total support, they reported only 1.9% more in 1970-71 than in 1969-70. This gain was due to increased support received by the professional and specialized schools. The major private universities reported a decrease of 1.8%.

Two-Year Colleges Post Gains. The private junior colleges and public community colleges reported a large decline in support in 1970-71. However, the 1969-70 figure included a large bequest; excluding this item, these schools received 16.3% more support in 1970-71.

Support for Current Uses Increased. More than 55% of the 1970-71 total was earmarked for current operations, the highest proportion on record. This continues a six-year rise, during which time support for capital purposes has been at a standstill.

Unrestricted Giving Continues Most Popular. Nearly one-third of total support was unrestricted as to use, roughly the same proportion as in earlier years, and substantially greater than the share earmarked for any of the restricted uses specified. Research support was up 13.1%, a greater increase than for any other category of giving by purpose.

INDEPENDENT ELEMENTARY & SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Annual Fund Support Up. Although the 332 independent schools reported 3.5% less support in total than the 321 such schools had in 1969-70, alumni and parent support of the annual fund was up 20% in 1970-71. Total support for current operations was 12.9% higher than in the previous Survey. All of the decrease was due to reduced capital giving by individuals.

The number of colleges and universities participating in the Survey was 1,080, a record high. However, the principal conclusions in this report are derived primarily from an analysis of the questionnaires received from 851 institutions of higher education that took part in both the 1969-70 and 1970-71 Surveys.

Digest of Findings

A. TOTAL VOLUNTARY SUPPORT REACHES NEW HIGH

For all U.S. colleges and universities combined, the grand total of voluntary support in 1970-71 is estimated to have increased about 4.5% to a level of $1.860 billion. Although this is a new record high, and 3.3% above the previous high of $1.800 billion in 1968-69, it represents only a partial resumption of the previous growth trend of 9% per year.

1. The total support tabulated for the 1,080 institutions of higher education that took part in the 1970-71 Survey was $1.504 billion. This represents an increase of $32 million, or 2.1%, over the amount reported by 1,045 institutions in 1969-70.

* Including $199,522,710 in non-recurring faculty salary endowment grants from The Ford Foundation.

 It should be noted that up to 1964-65 the voluntary support Surveys were biennial and that the percent changes cover a two-year period.

2. The small decline shown for average support per institution is the result of a change in the "mix" of participating institutions. Most of the increase in the number of colleges and universities consists of institutions with very low levels of support; in addition, two large universities, whose combined support amounted to $46 million, reported too late for computer tabulation. The addition of their figures increases the 1970-71 total to $1.550 billion, an increase of $78 million, or 5.3%, over 1969-70, and the average amount of support per institution to $1.433 million, an increase of 1.7% over 1969-70.

3. Among the 1,080 colleges and universities participating in the 1970-71 Survey were 851 institutions which also took part in the 1969-70 Survey. They reported $1.407 billion in 1970-71 versus $1.353 billion in 1969-70, an increase of $54 million, or 3.9%. The inclusion of the two late-reporting institutions would change this year-to-year increase to 3.5%. This two-year sample accounted for 91.8% of the tabulated total in 1969-70 and 93.5% in the current Survey.
4. Total voluntary support for all 2,600 colleges and universities in the United States is estimated by the CFAE to have been $1.860 billion in 1970-71, an increase of 4.5% over 1969-70. Although the 1970-71 figure represents a new record high, 3.3% above the previous record in 1968-69, it is well below the level consistent with past trends. Prior to 1969-70, total voluntary support had grown at an average rate of roughly 9% per year. If this rate had continued without interruption, the estimated total for 1970-71 would have been more than $2.1 billion.
5. The 332 independent secondary and elementary schools that took part in the 1970-71 Survey reported $87.1 million in voluntary support, $3.2 million, or 3.5%, less than was reported by 321 such schools for 1969-70. All the decrease was accounted for by reduced gifts for capital purposes; support for current operations in 1970-71 rose to $27.8 million, 12.9% more than the $24.6 million reported for this purpose in 1969-70.†

* In 1966-67 and prior years the participants included only those schools belonging to The American Alumni Council; since 1967-68 the Survey has also included members of the National Association of Independent Schools.

6. Five educational institutions outside the U.S., members of the AAC and/or the NAIS, participated in the 1970-71 Survey and reported $8.5 million of voluntary support. Of this sum, $8.2 million was reported by three colleges and universities, and the remainder was reported by two secondary schools.

† In its annual statistical survey of members' operations, the NAIS reported that 554 schools received $107.5 million of gift income in 1970-71 as against $118.7 million received by 552 schools in 1969-70.

B. INDIVIDUALS ONLY DONOR GROUPS SHOWING GAINS

The overall increase of voluntary support in 1970-71 was due entirely to increased giving by individuals, both alumni and non-alumni. The support received from all other sources either showed no change or decreased from the amounts reported in 1969-70.

1. Taken together, alumni and non-alumni individuals, accounted for the entire increase in overall support, and more. Support from foundations and corporations decreased modestly, while support from religious denominations was essentially unchanged. There was a very sharp decline in the amounts received from the miscellaneous sources – non-church, non-alumni groups and associations, and other sources. The actual distribution of support by source for all colleges and universities reporting and for the 851-institution sample is shown in Tables 3a and 3b.

2. As indicated in Tables 3a and 3b, the most noteworthy development in the voluntary support picture for 1970-71 was an upsurge in the amounts received from individual donors – alumni and non-alumni individuals. Most of this increase, however, appears to have been due to a very widespread gain in the amounts reported in the form of bequests (see Section E, Paragraph 1).

3. Alumni support recorded the largest increase of any of the donor categories, both for the Survey as a whole and for the 851-institution sample. For all colleges and universities reporting, alumni support rose from $314.3 million in 1969-70 to $373.0 million in 1970-71, an increase of 18.6%. For the 851-institution sample, the year-to-year increase amounted to 19.2%. This is the largest increase in alumni giving since this Survey became an annual undertaking in 1964-65, and it may well be the largest annual increase since 1958-59. Alumni support also increased as a percent of total voluntary support, from 21.3% in 1969-70 to 24.6% in 1970-71, and it became the second largest source of support, by a wide margin, for the first time in a decade.

The reported gains in alumni support were widespread. With the exception of private men's colleges, municipal institutions, and junior colleges, which reported less alumni support, there were very substantial gains for every class of educational institution. In the case of the state-controlled colleges and universities, the rise amounted to 54.4%. A random sampling of the reporting institutions indicates that the rise in alumni giving was also widespread within each of the major classes of colleges and universities.

Alumni support of the private secondary and elementary schools appears to have decreased in 1970-71. The 332 schools participating in this Survey reported $30.5 million from this source, as against $33.6 million reported by 321 schools for 1969-70. All of this difference was accounted for by decreased support for capital purposes; support for current operations was 15.0% greater for the schools taking part in the 1970-71 Survey than for those reporting in 1969-70.

4. Alumni contributions in response to Annual Fund appeals, for all colleges, universities, and independent pre-college schools combined, rose significantly in 1970-71. There was a 9.2% increase in the number of alumni donors and an 8.2% increase in the dollar amount of alumni gifts; the average gift, however, decreased by 0.9%. The proportion of those solicited who responded with one or more gifts was 17.6%, up slightly from 1969-70 but well below the levels of previous years. See Table 4.

* It should be noted that the 1968-69 figure for total alumni giving includes one non-recurring gift of $40 million.

5. As in every year since 1966-67, non-alumni individuals were the largest single source of support in 1970-71, both for all institutions reporting and for the two-year sample. Contributions from this source increased both in dollars and as a percentage of the total. For all colleges and universities participating, support from this source rose 6.8% in total and 3.1% on a per institution basis; for the 851-institution sample, the year-to-year gain amounted to 9.5%. As a percentage of total voluntary support, non-alumni individuals' gifts rose from 24.8% in 1969-70 to 26.6% in 1970-71, one of the highest levels on record.

VOLUNTARY SUPPORT PER INSTITUTION,
PRINCIPAL SOURCES OF SUPPORT

TRENDS IN PRINCIPAL SOURCES OF SUPPORT

Prior to 1968-69, the estimated total of voluntary support showed a growth trend of roughly 9.0% per year. Although this growth rate was significantly lower than the rates at which college and university expenditures were rising, it was generally higher than the rate of growth of the national economy. The National Income, for example, had been growing at rates between 4.5% and 7.5% per year. Consequently, voluntary support of higher education rose from about 0.12% of the National Income in 1952 to about 0.25% in 1968.

Voluntary support per institution from each of the major source categories also maintained a reasonably constant growth pattern, punctuated by random fluctuations, until 1968-69. The growth rates averaged between 8.0% and 10.0% per year, and in all cases were greater than the growth of income to the donor group. For example, support from alumni and non-alumni individuals grew more rapidly than personal income before taxes, and support from business corporations grew more rapidly than corporate profits before taxes.

It seems clear, however, that the past two years constitute a break in the trend picture for total support and for each of the major source components. This interruption in the pattern of growth is believed to be associated primarily with (1) the economic recession of 1969-1971, (2) the Tax Reform Act of 1969, and (3) the episodes of campus unrest during the 1968-1970.

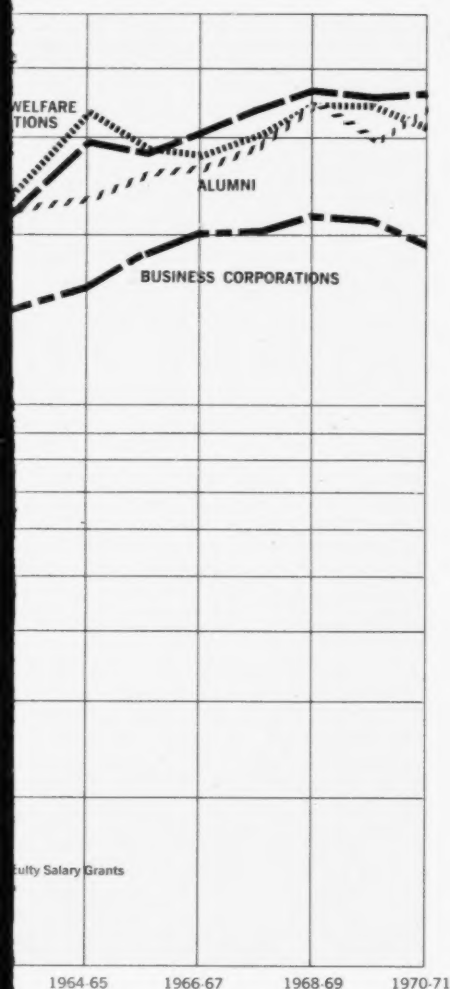

The recession had important effects on the general climate for philanthropy and specific effects on both individuals and corporations. Corporate profits declined severely between 1968 and 1970, and as a share of the National Income were at their lowest level since 1939. In the face of this development, it is remarkable that the total support did not decline. Concurrently, there was a slight increase in the number of individuals who tend to be of appreciable

With respect to the principal sources of support, the foundation tax on for-profit corporations was a significant diversion of funds which many of their wealthy donors had much of the Act applied provisions of certain tax provisions applicable to have a corporation change gifts-in-kind to attractive support. TRENDS IN PRINCIPAL SOURCES OF SUPPORT

Prior to 1968-69, the estimated total of voluntary support showed a growth trend of roughly 9.0% per year. Although this growth rate was significantly lower than the rates at which college and university expenditures were rising, it was generally higher than the rate of growth of the national economy. The National Income, for example, had been growing at rates between 4.5% and 7.5% per year. Consequently, voluntary support of higher education rose from about 0.12% of the National Income in 1952 to about 0.25% in 1968.

Voluntary support per institution from each of the major source categories also maintained a reasonably constant growth pattern, punctuated by random fluctuations, until 1968-69. The growth rates averaged between 8.0% and 10.0% per year, and in all cases were greater than the growth of income to the donor group. For example, support from alumni and non-alumni individuals grew more rapidly than personal income before taxes, and support from business corporations grew more rapidly than corporate profits before taxes.

It seems clear, however, that the past two years constitute a break in the trend picture for total support and for each of the major source components. This interruption in the pattern of growth is believed to be associated primarily with (1) the economic recession of 1969-1971, (2) the Tax Reform Act of 1969, and (3) the episodes of campus unrest during the 1968-1970.

The recession had important effects on the general climate for philanthropy and specific effects on both individuals and corporations. Corporate profits declined severely between 1968 and 1970, and as a share of the National Income were at their lowest level since 1939. In the face of this development, it is remarkable that corporate support did not decrease by more than it did. Concurrent with the drop in profits was a slump in the stock markets which had an adverse effect on individuals, since the big donors tend to make major gifts in the form of appreciated securities.

With respect to the Tax Reform Act, the principal effect was on the foundation community. Although the tax on foundation income has frequently been singled out as a diversion of foundation resources which might otherwise have found their way to educational support, much of the adverse effect of the Act appears to be due to other provisions of the law and to some uncertainty about their meaning and application. The Act is also known to have had some impact on corporation support because of the change in the method of valuation of gifts-in-kind which reduced the attractiveness of this type of support. The net effect of the new tax legislation on individuals is not yet clear.

The impact of campus unrest on voluntary support is largely unknown. Many marginal donors, both individuals and corporations, may well have been influenced by specific events on particular campuses, and some support was undoubtedly withheld. However, these cases were offset, at least in part, by other instances of increased support from those whose interests in higher education were awakened by these same events. On balance, it seems likely that the growth of voluntary support was retarded somewhat by the campus upheavals that were so widely publicized. With the passage of time, it would appear that the influence of all these factors will diminish and that voluntary support will once again resume its upward course. In particular, a continued economic recovery and expansion should be expected to have a favorable impact on the climate for voluntary support.

For the independent pre-college schools, non-alumni parents, friends, and other individuals were also the largest single source of support. However, their support dropped from $41.6 million in 1969-70 to $35.9 million in 1970-71, a decrease of 13.7%, and as a share of the total from 46.0% to 41.3%. As with alumni gifts, all the reported decline consisted of reduced support for capital purposes; giving for current operations increased by 13.3%.

6. Educational support from general welfare foundations shows a mixed picture. For all the institutions of higher education participating in the Survey, support from this source in 1970-71 amounted to $341.1 million, a decrease of 5.1% from the $359.3 million reported in 1969-70. For the 851-institution sample, however, the year-to-year decline was only 0.7%. Among the 765 four-year colleges and universities there was a marked shift of support from the private to the public institutions. For private colleges, foundation support decreased 5.0%; for public institutions, foundation support increased 14.6%.

There was also an increase in foundation support of independent pre-college schools; the 332 schools in the 1970-71 Survey reported $12.3 million from this source, some 29.2% more than the $9.6 million reported by 321 schools participating in the 1969-70 Survey.

7. Business corporations gave less to the institutions of higher education in 1970-71, most probably because of the slump in corporate profits that continued through the fourth quarter of 1970. For all colleges and universities reporting, the data show a decline from $222.4 million in 1969-70 to $210.9 million in 1970-71, or 5.2%; for the 851-institution sample, the decrease amounted to 5.7%. The pattern of changes in business support in 1970-71 was identical to that in 1969-70 — increased support of four-year public institutions and decreased support of private four-year institutions and all two-year institutions.
8. The support of higher education by the religious denominations showed a mixed picture. For the Survey as a whole, the data show an increase from $83.4 million in 1969-70 to $84.8 million in 1970-71, or 1.8%. For the 851-institution sample, however, support from this source decreased 0.7%. The private men's and private women's colleges reported increased support; all other categories of institutions reported decreases.* It should be noted that the dollar totals for both years materially understate the level of support from religious bodies, since one major church-related university did not report this information.
9. The voluntary support received from all sources other than those discussed above decreased significantly in 1970-71. However, most of the decline reflects a $21 million item of a non-recurring nature in 1969-70; without this item, the year-to-year decline would have been 2.4% for all colleges and universities reporting and 0.7% for the 851-institution sample.

It is known that the "other groups and sources" category includes some support from the major donor groups which cannot be identified as such by the reporting institutions. A disproportionate share of the total in this category, more than half, was reported by the public colleges and universities, and these institutions experienced a 17.7% increase in such support in 1970-71.

* In reporting support from religious denominations, the institutions are asked to exclude the value of contributed services of members of religious orders. Prior to 1967-68, such services were treated as though they represented income from "endowment" and the value of such services was capitalized at 4%. In many instances, accounting practices have changed and cash payments are now made for services rendered. Where such payments are voluntarily returned to the institution, they are reported as support from religious denominations. The effect of this change in accounting on the level of support reported is not known.

C. AMONG RECIPIENTS, PUBLIC COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES SHOW BIGGEST GAIN

With the exception of the major private universities, all classes of colleges and universities reported increased support in 1970-71. However, the public colleges and universities did generally better than the private institutions. In the 851-institution sample, 65.3% of the public colleges and universities posted increases; the corresponding figure for the private institutions was 53.9%.

1. There were 698 private, four-year colleges and universities reporting for 1970-71, and they reported $1.156 billion, or 0.1%, more voluntary support than the 701 such institutions in the 1969-70 Survey. In the two-year sample, there were 609 of these institutions, and they reported 1.5% more support in 1970-71 than in 1969-70. The inclusion of one major private university that reported late would result in a year-to-year change of 1.9%.
2. As to the public colleges and universities, there were 231 four-year institutions in the 1970-71 Survey; they reported $325.6 million, or 11.6% more than the 197 such institutions reported for 1969-70. There were 156 in this group that reported in both years, and they received 17.6% more support in 1970-71 than in 1969-70. The inclusion of one large state university that reported late would reduce the year-to-year increase to 12.2%.

3. The major private universities continued to account for the largest share of the grand total, but their relative importance declined from 43.3% in 1969-70 to 40.1% in 1970-71. There were 55 institutions in this group that took part in both the 1969-70 and 1970-71 Surveys, and they collectively received 2.6% less support in the latter year than in the former. Excluding a $21 million non-recurring item in 1969-70, the year-to-year experience shows a 0.9% increase. In terms of the sources of support to these universities, only the alumni provided increased support; all the other donor categories provided less support in 1970-71 than in 1969-70.
4. The private coeducational colleges, which are the most numerous in the Survey, reported 1.9% more support in 1970-71 than in 1969-70. For the colleges in this group that participated in both Surveys, the year-to-year gain amounted to 2.6%. They received more from alumni, non-alumni individuals, and foundations, and less from corporations, religious denominations, and miscellaneous sources.
5. For all institutions reporting, the private men's and private women's colleges received more in 1970-71 than in 1969-70; a gain of 1.4% for the former, an increase of 1.0% for the latter. Those reporting in both Surveys did somewhat better; the men's group received 4.8% more, and the women's group received 2.5% more, in 1970-71. Both groups of colleges reported decreased support from business corporations; the men's colleges also received less from foundations, and the women's colleges also received less from their alumni. All other sources provided increased support to these two groups of institutions.
6. The private professional and specialized institutions scored the largest increase in voluntary support in 1970-71 of any of the groups in the Survey. For all institutions participating, the total support of this group rose 30.9%; for the 62 participating in both years' Surveys, the gain amounted to 25.1%. A substantial part of the year-to-year increase consisted of a single, non-recurring gift to one institution in the amount of $13 million. Even without this item, however, the overall gain for this group of institutions was still impressive — 16.5% for all participants and 10.0% for the two-year sample. All of the increase in support for this group was due to increased giving by individuals and to increased contributions from miscellaneous sources; support from corporations and foundations was off substantially, and contributions from religious groups were down slightly.

7. Very large increases in voluntary support were reported by the state-controlled colleges and universities. With 16.0% more institutions reporting, total support in 1970-71 amounted to $314.1 million, some 11.2% more than was received in 1969-70. The 152 institutions in this group that participated in both Surveys reported an increase of 17.5% from year to year. This gain was widespread among the reporting colleges and universities and included all sources of support with the exception of the minor amounts provided by church groups. The inclusion of one large state university that reported late with a large year-to-year decrease involving a non-recurring item would reduce the 1970-71 increase from 17.5% to 12.0%.

8. The junior and community colleges reported a decrease of voluntary support which amounted to 13.4% for all institutions and 24.4% for those taking part in both the 1969-70 and 1970-71 Surveys. This result was heavily influenced by an $8 million bequest to one institution in 1969-70. Without this item, all reporting two-year institutions received 25.8% more support in 1970-71 than in 1969-70; for the 86 institutions in both Surveys, there would be a year-to-year increase of 16.3%. As with the four-year colleges, the lion's share of the increased support was reported by the public junior and community colleges.

9. The 20 institutions reporting the highest totals of voluntary support in 1970-71 were:

HARVARD UNIVERSITY	$60,893,216	PRINCETON UNIVERSITY	$21,763,139
YALE UNIVERSITY	45,405,884	NEW YORK UNIVERSITY	21,743,403

10. The 332 private secondary and elementary schools that participated in the 1970-71 Survey reported $87.1 million of voluntary support, some 3.5% less than the $90.3 million reported by the 321 schools that took part in the 1969-70 Survey. All of this decrease was due to reduced support for capital purposes; support for current operations increased from $24.6 million to $27.8 million, a gain of 12.9%. Support from alumni, which accounted for 37.2% of the total in 1969-70, decreased 9.1% and accounted for 35.0% of the total in 1970-71. Support from non-alumni individuals, 46.0% of the total in 1969-70, was 13.6% less, and 41.3% of the total, in 1970-71. Foundation support rose 29.2% in dollar amount, and from 10.6% to 14.2% in relative importance. Support from business corporations and from miscellaneous sources, which account for a minor amount of the total, achieved very large percentage gains. The 10 schools reporting the highest totals of support were:

PHILLIPS EXETER ACADEMY (N.H.)	$3,118,012	NORTHFIELD MOUNT HERMON SCH. (MASS.)	$1,664,432

Technical Notes:

- A. In the listings on the following pages, Column 22 does not purport to show the total operating expenditures of the reporting institutions; it excludes the operating costs of dormitories, dining halls, student stores, and other "auxiliary enterprises" as well as all outlays of a capital nature.
- B. In some instances the number of institutions listed is greater than the number tabulated, for three reasons: (1) some multicampus institutions are shown in summary as well as in detail, (2) some of the component professional schools of major institutions are also listed separately, and (3) a few of the institutions not supplying complete information or reporting too late for computer tabulation are listed.
- C. As indicated in the Preface, there were 120 institutions responding to the Survey invitation which are omitted from the tabulated data. These institutions include those which (1) were unable to supply any information, (2) received no support, (3) were unable to supply complete information, or (4) reported too late for computer tabulation. These institutions are listed separately on page 76.

Note: The year-to-year changes shown in this table are not all of equal significance. The total amount reported by any one class of institution from any one class of donor drives, the timing of corporate and foundation programs, large bequests and other non-recurring influences. This is particularly true of the smaller groups of institution. 48 entries in the body of the table show changes of 15% or more; of these 22 large changes, 13 of them involve amounts of less than $10 million and/or fewer than 100 donors. This is primarily attributable to one large gift to a single institution from a single donor. For example, support from "other groups and sources" to major private universities is of non-recurring nature; without this item, the year-to-year change in this entry would be -29.0%. On the other hand, it appears that at least half of all the entries are so involved is sufficiently big, to ensure that the percentage change is meaningful. The row and column totals are likewise statistically significant.

D. CURRENT FUNDS UP SHARPLY

The increase of total voluntary support in 1970-71 appears to have been due entirely to expanded support for current operations; support for capital purposes decreased for the second year in a row. In terms of specific applications, the largest increase was achieved by funds earmarked for research.

1. Total voluntary support is reported broadly by purpose in terms of support for current operations and support for capital purposes. As shown in Table 6, current support increased 4.9% while capital support (which includes endowment funds) decreased 1.1% in 1970-71. The historical division of total voluntary support according to these two broad purposes is:

	Current Operations	Capital Purposes
1960-61	48.5%	51.5%
1962-63	47.9%	52.1%
1964-65	43.1%	56.9%

1969-70	53.4%	46.6%
1970-71	55.3%	44.7%

It will be noted that support for current operations has tended to rise, and support for capital purposes has tended to fall, in relative importance. The 55.3% shown for current support in 1970-71 is the highest level on record. Furthermore, an examination of the dollar figures actually reported indicates that total

PRINCIPAL PURPOSES OF SUPPORT

TRENDS IN PRINCIPAL PURPOSES OF SUPPORT

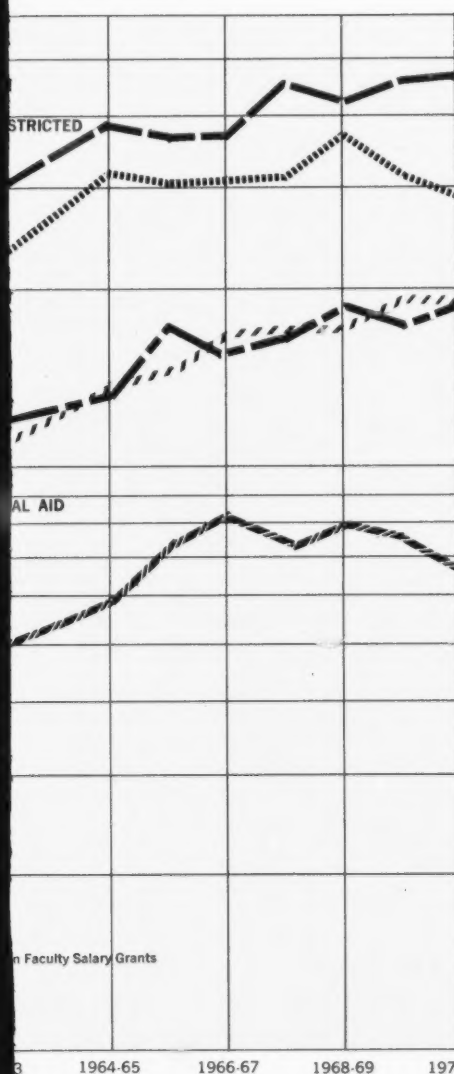

In the past six years there has emerged a distinct change in pattern of voluntary support per institution by purpose. Although these changes have been mostly by the slow-down in total support since 1968-69, they are clearly discernible on the accompanying

The most important of these concerns support given for physical plant — funds for the purchase, construction, improvement, operation and maintenance of buildings, grounds, equipment and other facilities. Support for this purpose, which rose more than 13% per year prior to 1964-65, has shown no growth whatever in the past six years. In fact, the 1970-71 figure is 8.3% less than the amount reported in 1964-65. Since this is one of the principal categories of support for capital purposes, this observation is consistent with the fact that support for current operations has been responsible for all of the growth in total voluntary support since 1964-65.

A second important change is a turnaround in support earmarked for faculty and staff compensation. In the eight years prior to 1966-67, support had risen 8.6% per year on the average, which is roughly parallel to the rate of growth of total voluntary support. Since 1966-67, however, gifts for this purpose have decreased 20%, and as a share of total voluntary support, are at the lowest level ever recorded.

The other categories shown have

SUPPORT PER INSTITUTION, PURPOSES OF SUPPORT

TRENDS IN PRINCIPAL PURPOSES OF SUPPORT

In the past six years there has emerged a distinct change in the pattern of voluntary support per institution by purpose. Although these changes have been modified by the slow-down in total support since 1968-69, they are clearly discernible on the accompanying chart.

The most important of these concerns support given for physical plant — funds for the purchase, construction, improvement, operation and maintenance of buildings, grounds, equipment and other facilities. Support for this purpose, which rose more than 13% per year prior to 1964-65, has shown no growth whatever in the past six years. In fact, the 1970-71 figure is 8.3% less than the amount reported in 1964-65. Since this is one of the principal categories of support for capital purposes, this observation is consistent with the fact that support for current operations has been responsible for all of the growth in total voluntary support since 1964-65.

A second important change is the turnaround in support earmarked for faculty and staff compensation. In the eight years prior to 1966-67 such support had risen 8.6% per year on the average, which is roughly parallel to the rate of growth of total voluntary support. Since 1966-67, however, gifts for this purpose have decreased 20%, and as a share of total voluntary support, are at the lowest level ever recorded.

The other categories shown have maintained relatively stable growth patterns. This is especially true of gifts in support of student aid. Such gifts, on a per institution basis, declined very slightly in 1970-71. In prior years, however, student aid support had increased every year and had maintained a fairly steady rate of growth. In the ten years ending 1966-67, this growth averaged more than 10% per year. Support designated for this purpose has since increased to about as large a share of total support, 13.5%, as at any time in the history of this Survey.

Support earmarked for basic research has fluctuated in both dollars per institution and as a share of total voluntary support, but it has followed a more or less steady upward trend. Such support increased 9.4% in 1970-71, which exceeds the increases in all other categories.

Unrestricted support, which has perennially accounted for about one-third of total support, reached a record level in 1970-71 in terms of dollars per institution. In the past six years however, such support has risen at an average rate of only 2.5% per year, as compared to an average of 13.6% in the six years ending 1964-65.

Voluntary support for all other purposes not shown separately increased generally in line with total support until 1968-69. In that year there was a 44% jump in these categories, and since then the "other purposes" have accounted for about one-sixth of the total versus one-eighth in prior years.

support for capital purposes has remained relatively constant, at about $700 million, in every year since 1964-65. This implies that all the increase in total voluntary support during the last six years has been due to increased giving for current operations.

2. The relative importance of support for current and capital purposes varies greatly from one class of institution to another. These divisions and their changes in the past two years are shown in Table 7.

With the exception of private professional and specialized institutions and the two groups of public colleges and universities, every class of institution received relatively more for current operations, and less for capital purposes, in 1970-71 than in 1969-70.

Among the various groups of contributors there is a similar variation. Table 8 reflects the division for all institutions in the Survey, including colleges and universities, secondary and elementary schools, and the institutions outside the U.S.

3. In broad terms, about one-third of voluntary support is unrestricted as to use, and about two-thirds is earmarked for various specific purposes. In 1970-71, unrestricted grants and gifts increased 4.3% over 1969-70, and gained fractionally as a percentage of the total. Most of the gain resulted from increased giving in this category by individuals, especially alumni; there were decreases in unrestricted support from foundations, corporations, and miscellaneous sources. And the bulk of the increased support of this type was reported by the private coeducational colleges and state-controlled colleges and universities.
4. The largest year-to-year increase in restricted giving was in funds earmarked for research. Support designated for this purpose increased 13.1% in 1970-71. All categories of donors increased their giving in this area, with the greatest increase coming from non-alumni individuals. And with the exception of private women's colleges, all institutional classes reported increased receipts for this purpose.

5. Support designated for faculty compensation decreased 11.0% from 1969-70 to 1970-71. Foundations increased their giving for this purpose, but all other donor categories provided less support in this category. The largest decrease was reported by the major private universities, but there were significant decreases posted also by the municipal colleges and secondary schools; gains were reported by private coeducational colleges, professional and specialized institutions, state colleges and universities, and junior and community colleges.
6. The year-to-year changes in the other restricted categories of support were fairly small and had relatively little impact on the percentage distribution of support by purpose. Support designated for physical plant decreased a further 3.9% in 1970-71 after a very significant decline in 1969-70. The decrease was widespread among all classes of recipients and all categories of donors. Funds earmarked for student aid rose 1.5%, primarily due to alumni giving for this purpose and primarily of benefit to public colleges and universities. All other designated gifts and grants increased 2.7%, virtually all of which was accounted for by increased giving by non-alumni individuals to public institutions.

E. OTHER FINDINGS: BEQUESTS, DEFERRED GIVING, AND ENDOWMENTS

1. As might be expected, there is a high degree of random variation in the amount of voluntary support from individuals received in the form of bequests. This factor was responsible for a large part of the upturn in total voluntary support in 1970-71, since reported bequests rose from $185.7 million in 1969-70 to $266.0 million in 1970-71, an increase of 43.3%. This is the largest year-to-year movement in this figure since 1964-65, and by a very wide margin. The dollar total of bequests amounted to 17.6% of the grand total of voluntary support; this compares with 12.6% in the previous year. In relation to the total support received from individuals, bequests accounted for well over one-third; this is the highest proportion on record during the last ten years. That the increase was widespread is shown by the fact that bequests as a percentage of support from all individuals rose for all classes of institutions except men's colleges, municipal colleges and universities, and junior colleges.

The total of annuities, life contracts, insurance policies, and other forms of deferred giving amounted to $30.1 million in 1970-71, a drop of 11.7% from the $34.1 million reported in 1969-70. As a share of total voluntary support, such giving declined from 2.3% to 2.0%, and as a share of total support from individuals, it declined from 5.0% in 1969-70 to 3.9% in 1970-71.

2. In the 1970-71 Survey, 1,007 colleges and universities furnished data on the book value of their endowment funds, as compared to 977 providing such information in 1969-70. Figures on the market value of endowments were supplied by 918 institutions in 1970-71 versus 882 in 1969-70.

	Book Value	Market Value
1970-71	$9,421,470,510 (1,007 institutions)	$11,325,350,815 (918 institutions)
1969-70	$9,730,278,868 (977 institutions)	$ 9,199,401,044 (882 institutions)
% Change	-3.2%	+23.1%

The major private universities accounted for 52.2% of the book value and 55.6% of the market value of all endowments reported in 1970-71; the corresponding proportions for 1969-70 were 51.1% and 56.5%, respectively.

The comparable figures for the independent secondary and elementary schools were as follows:

	Book Value	Market Value
1970-71	$414,236,445 (285 institutions)	$528,151,006 (279 institutions)
1969-70	$414,468,294 (276 institutions)	$405,235,494 (253 institutions)
% Change	-0.1%	+30.3%

3. The total amount of corporate support received through employee gift matching programs was $7,170,586 for the 1,080 colleges and universities tabulated. The total dollar figure for this source of support has risen every year since the data were first tabulated in 1966-67, and the overall gain for the four-year period is 70%. This growth reflects both an increase in the total number of gifts matched and an increase in the size of the average gift matched. The gain in the number of gifts matched, however, is roughly equivalent to the growth in the number of companies known to have matching gift programs. As shown in a separate report,* the rate of participation by employees eligible to participate in these programs has been relatively constant at about two percent. This is significantly less than the proportion of corporate employees who are college graduates.
